“ Erin was a very spirited woman that touched the heart of my family. We took her in and treated her like family. My father especially took an interest in Erin's recovery. He told me once that she had sad eyes and an old soul. She came to our home many times for Sunday dinner and immediately became one of us. She had the voice of an Angel and shared that gift with us on more than one occasion. I loved her like a sister, my parents loved her like a daughter. There was something special about her. When I found out she had passed away my heart sunk. I cried with my parents many nights since. I don't understand why God took her from us, I guess he had other plans for her. The only happiness I can take away from this is knowing that she is on my side in heaven looking down on me as an Angel does. I'm sending prayers to her family and friends daily. I only hope that her children will one day know how wonderful Erin was and that she had a heart of gold. I love you Erin! Please watch over all of your sisters in recovery, I will never forget you babygirl!

“ Erin it was never dull with you around. You always had us laughing. You were always wearing those boy clothes no makeup just up and go but I remember when you found out that your husband and kids were coming to see you and it had been awhile. You were so happy till that morning then you freaked trying to look perfect and you got dressed up and put on makeup WOW you looked beautiful. Everyone couldn't believe how wonderful you looked. But I know what people remember more than that was when you came back it wasn't you everyone was looking at with their mouths on the floor it was what a hunk your husband was. I have never heard the place as quite as it was when you both walked in the door and he kissed you. Everyone wanted to be you right then. We all laughed as he left and in that moment you were the envy of everyone. I hope you know how loved you were by so many people always and forever!

“ Erin you were my bf,I always looked forward to your phone call everyday!! I still don't want to believe that you will no longer be calling me anymore. I think about you constantly every day, and I find myself laughing at some things we would say and do. We were a riot when together, I can honestly say you were there through everything with me babe,I miss you desperately and love you more then you ever knew... You are in a better place no pain and not having the want anymore, watch over us all and keep us safe love you Erin.

“ I met Erin, going on two years ago at the Ladies of Promise program and she was the type that kept a smile on a lot of people faces. She have a beautiful voice, got to here her sing at church. She always fought the good fight at faith that one day she will grab ahold of the grip to recovery. I can say she tried her best and that is why I never gave up on her. You will always have a special place in my heart. I love you Erin and may you Rest in Peace.

“ Erin was a wonderful young lady, she had a voice like a angel when she sang. She always talked about how much she loved her boys and her husband and how desperatly she wish she could be with them. She will always be forever in our hearts. Fly high baby girl and watch over us all as we try to carry on without you.

“ I want to be mad at you and hate you. This shouldnt have happened. But you said god has his own way of answering prayers. Thank you for giving me your love and friendship. You opened your arms and your familys arms to my family. Thank you. Someday we shall meet again.

Cathie Hanner - March 27, 2015 at 10:58 PM

“ My prayers for you and your family Erin. You were very loved, and will be missed dearly. I will never forget the energy in your spirit, or your courage. You are an amazing spirit. May you finally rest in peace dear friend, free from the physical. Watch over all of us friends and family and be our guardian angel. My condolences to the family. Many prayers and much love from my heart to yours. Erin has touched many peoples lives.
